

Statement provided by Samson Hartland in response to WUCC questions

Upon further consideration, I've been able to produce this statement in response to your detailed questionnaire. I hope it provides some insight, and I look forward to learning more tonight. See you soon!

Cycling is a vital component of the Whitehorse transportation community.

The City has a responsibility to engage with its stakeholders in the development of transportation infrastructure, including cyclists. When developing new or retrofitting pre-existing infrastructure, it is important to develop it in a way which is inclusive and designed with safety as a priority within the finite resources available to the City.

I am committed to learning more from the WUCC, and working collaboratively to address issues as identified in your questionnaire and look forward to beginning to engage in such dialogue on Monday, October 5th.
